

LOCAL NEWS.

WEATHER PROBABILITIES. June 12, 1879. For the Middle Atlantic States falling followed by rising barometer, warm southerly winds, generally shifting to cooler northerly, cloudy or partly cloudy weather.

DEATH OF JUDGE LOWE.—The death of Judge E. M. Lowe, of the Corporation Court, was briefly alluded to in yesterday's Gazette. The sad event was not unexpected, the Judge having been in a helpless condition since he was first stricken with paralysis, on the 25th of May. Judge Lowe was born in this city, but in early life emigrated to Kansas, where he acted as U. S. Attorney. At the breaking out of the war he returned to the South, and was connected with the Confederate Quartermaster's Department in North Carolina.

Upon the organization of the Corporation Court, in May, 1870, he was elected by the General Assembly as its Judge, which position he held ever since. He was about forty-seven years of age, and a widower, having lost his wife, in this city, some few years ago. Judge Lowe left a will bequeathing his entire property to Miss Mary Joyce, a niece of his wife, now residing in Kansas, but formerly a pupil of St. Mary's Academy in this city. Capt. John S. Chapman is appointed his executor.

The funeral will take place from St. Mary's Church to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

BAR MEETING.—A meeting of the bar of this city was held in the Corporation Court room at 3 o'clock this evening to take action regarding the death of Judge E. M. Lowe.

The bench was appropriately draped in mourning, while from above depended heavy festoons of black cloth.

The meeting was called to order by S. C. Neale, esq., on whose motion C. W. Wattle, esq., was elected chairman.

Leonard Marbury was appointed secretary. A committee, consisting of Messrs. J. M. Johnson, Edmund Burke and F. L. Smith, was appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sentiments of the meeting.

After a short time they reported the following: Whereas the Hon. E. M. Lowe, Judge of the Corporation Court of the city of Alexandria, has departed this life, therefore be it Resolved, by the Bar of Alexandria, assembled to bear public testimony to his virtues and worth. That in his death the community has lost a good citizen, a man of spotless integrity and honor, a learned upright and impartial judge, the members of the Bar true friend, was counselor, and kind companion, and the commonwealth an ornament to her judiciary, and a loyal and devoted son.

Resolved, That the Bar will attend his funeral in a body, and wear the appropriate badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That these resolutions be presented by the chairman to the court of this city, with the request that they be spread upon their minutes, and be published in the press of this city.

Mr. Johnson said that an opportunity would be afforded for eulogies when the resolutions were presented to the court.

On motion of Capt. J. S. Chapman the following members were appointed pall bearers: S. F. Beach, Albert Smith, H. O. Claughton, John S. Chapman, S. C. Neale and F. L. Smith.

MOUNT VERNON.—As announced in the Gazette, the meeting of the citizens was to have been held at Mt. Vernon yesterday. A large number failed to attend, however, the only regular present being Mrs. Barry, of Illinois; Mrs. Swan, of Maine; Mrs. Hanson, of Connecticut; Mrs. Barre, District of Columbia; Mrs. Walker, North Carolina; Mrs. Townsend, New York; and Mrs. Broadwell, Ohio.

A social reunion was held, however, at which Mrs. Broadwell stated that the Ohio room had been supplied with furniture, and gave a list of articles. It comprises the harpsichord of Miss Nellie Curtis, which was given her as a wedding present by General Washington on the occasion of her marriage to Col. Lewis; several rare vases, reproductions of lamp-glasses, curtains and covers for furniture of the style of a century ago; and a handsome pair of handiwork and fender. The room was fitted up last Tuesday, and was thrown open for inspection for the first time yesterday.

A number of distinguished visitors were present during a portion of the day.

A quorum of the Regents was expected to-day, and the meeting will probably conclude to-morrow evening.

Among the business to be transacted during the meeting will be the selection of vice-regents to fill vacancies from California and Iowa, as the ladies who formerly represented those States have died since the last annual meeting; examination and inspection of the accounts of the superintendent, making appropriation for the current year, and inspection of the farm and outbuildings.

From June 1, 1878 to June 1, 1879, there have been 11,026 visitors to the Mausoleum.

The financial condition of the association is excellent.

TARIFF OF RATES.—At a meeting of the Commercial Exchange, last Saturday, with Allen C. Harmon, esq., President, in the chair, and Chas. S. Taylor, Jr., Secretary, the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

1st. Resolved, That on and after July 1, 1879, the commission on all kinds of grain sold on this exchange, viz: wheat, corn, rye, oats, buckwheat, &c., shall be two cents per bushel.

2d. Resolved, That on and after July 1, 1879, the price charged for the hire of grain carts shall be three cents per bag, and one cent per bag (and no more) may be paid for distribution.

3d. Resolved, That any deviation, direct or indirect, from any rule of the Commercial Exchange now in force, or which may be adopted hereafter, shall subject the party or parties so departing therefrom to a fine of $25 for the first offense, and for the second offense expulsion from the association.

4. Resolved, That the Secretary be directed to have the proceedings of this meeting reduced to writing, and signed by each member of the Commercial Exchange entered upon the record, and that the same be published in the Alexandria Gazette, and that three thousand copies be printed for distribution by the members.

THE FAIRFAX SHOOTING.—Mr. Frank Micor, who shot Mr. Cleveland, near Fairfax C. U., last week, denies the statements in regard to the affair heretofore published, and sends the following notice for publication:—

June 11, 1879. It is true that I shot Mr. Cleveland, but in self defense. It is not true, as I learn, that the Commonwealth's Attorney took his note more statement. The Commonwealth's Attorney, as I am informed, has not seen him, and the condition of Mr. Cleveland is not official.

FRANK MINOR, Attorney at Law, 1411 F. St., Washington, D. C.

THE UNION GOSPEL MEETINGS.—The Bible reading at 5 p. m. was omitted yesterday. The discourse at night was on the character and conduct of Daniel, as presented in the first four chapters of his prophecy. This subject is to be omitted to night. Friday night service will be especially for business men, though all classes are invited, and the truth presented will be for all. It is expected that the meetings next week will be held in the M. E. Church South. Bible reading today at 5 p. m., and service also at 8 p. m., and at the same hour to-morrow.

It is not judicious to postpone the consideration of your health, because you have not time to take a thorough course of medicine, but take Dr. Bull's Baltimore Pills, which will induce harmonious functional effort at once. Price 25 cents.

ST. JOHN'S CADETS.—King street wharf was crowded with ladies and gentlemen this morning, to witness the departure of the battalion of Cadets of St. John's Academy, on their annual excursion down the river. The cadets marched down the street at 7:30 o'clock preceded by their drum corps and presented a very handsome appearance. After waiting on the wharf some time, for the embarkation of their baggage and supplies and to take leave of friends, they embarked on board the steamer Mattano and started for River Springs, amidst the cheers of the men and the waving of handkerchiefs by the ladies.

The boys will return on Wednesday evening next.

TEMPLE'S EXCURSION.—The excursion of Old Dominion Commandery, Knights Templar, to-morrow night, will be one of the most enjoyable of the season. Every arrangement which could ensure the comfort and pleasure of the guests has been made, and no pains will be spared by the committee to cater to the public taste.

THE CORPORATION DEBT.—The statement of the amount of interest paid by the city, as mentioned yesterday, and the balance left unpaid, was only intended to apply to the last fiscal year and not to the accrued interest, of which a very large amount remains unpaid, upwards of $100,000.

THE VACANT JUDGESHIP.—The vacancy in the Judgeship of the Corporation Court, caused by the death of Judge Lowe, was the subject of considerable talk on the streets to-day. The friends of Messrs. K. Kemper and C. E. Stuart had petitions out, both of which received numerous signatures.

CORPUS CHRISTI.—To-day was celebrated in the Catholic Church as the feast of Corpus Christi, instituted in honor of the Eucharistic Sacrament. It is a holiday of obligation and services were held in St. Mary's church at 6 and 10 a. m.

The unveiling of the bronze bust of William Gilmore Simms, the poet and novelist, took place yesterday afternoon at Charleston, S. C., in the presence of a large assemblage, at White Point Garden. The bust is of heroic size.

The nomination of ex-Senator Conover to be collector of Florida has been withdrawn from the Senate, Dennis Egan having qualified for that position.

Prompt action. It regulates the Bowels, cures Diarrhea, Dysentery and Wind Colic; in fact Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup acts promptly and effectually in all cases. Price 25 cents a bottle.

COMMERCE.

ALEXANDRIA MARKET, JUNE 12.—The stock of Flour on hand is limited, and prices are still rising, particularly for Super and Extras, which are wanted. The activity in Wheat continues, but the receipts are light; the offerings on 'Change to-day were only about 600 bushels, which sold at 108, 110 and 117 for ordinary to good; no choice Lancaster on the market, which would bring from 120 to 125. Corn scarce and wanted; sales of white to-day at 64, and yellow at 51, with an upward tendency. Rye is also active and in demand, with small sales at 70. The advance in the price of Oats in the West has stopped shipments, and the receipts are consequently very limited, none having been offered for several days past; they would bring 60.

GEORGETOWN CATTLE MARKET, JUNE 12.—Offerings and sales were as follows: Number of Cattle on the market 110, which sold at prices ranging from 4 to 65 per lb. 100 Super and Lambs offered; Lambs sold at 32.50 per pound; Sheep at 34.50 per lb. 21 Cows sold at 24.50 per head.

BALTIMORE, JUNE 12.—Virginia flour sold at 68; do 2d quality 65; do 3d quality 62; do 4th quality 59; do 5th quality 56; do 6th quality 53; do 7th quality 50; do 8th quality 47; do 9th quality 44; do 10th quality 41; do 11th quality 38; do 12th quality 35; do 13th quality 32; do 14th quality 29; do 15th quality 26; do 16th quality 23; do 17th quality 20; do 18th quality 17; do 19th quality 14; do 20th quality 11; do 21st quality 8; do 22nd quality 5; do 23rd quality 2; do 24th quality 0.

Southern Memorial Day in Alexandria—Speech of General Charles E. Hooker—Incidents, &c., &c.

[REPORTED FOR THE ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE.]

If the disembodied spirits of the patriot brave who have fallen in the defense of their country follow with interest, as we may well believe they do, the steps of those who still tread the soil they gave up their lives to save, it was surely a pleasing offering to their shades that the brave and the fair should first witness the exposures of fresh and blushing maidenhood to the eyes of the living. Such an introduction to their obsequies, so graceful an exordium had, yesterday, the gallant dead of the Confederacy who slumber in our midst. Southern women were ever the true friends to southern soldiers; as their best hope in life—their strong consolation as it ebbed away; and it was a circumstance far from uninteresting that the charming girl who yesterday was all hearts at Old Christ Church should bear a name which the flashing swords of more than one Virginia cavalier have made illustrious.

The memorial procession, which was drawn up on Washington street opposite Christ Church at 12 o'clock p. m., after some delay, marched from Washington to King street, and up King to the Fair Grounds. The Alexandria Light Infantry, Lieut. McBarney commanding, with martial music, headed the column. They were conspicuous for the military bearing and precision in marching, which has made the company, though so recently formed, already distinguished. The St. John's Cadets were present, though not under arms. The civic portion of the procession, marching on foot, was headed by the gallant Major General Corse, having for military aids, Major Deffey and Captains Stuart and Bryant, and Messrs. Beckham and Simpson. Several carriages concluded the line, one of which contained the orator of the day. Arrived at the Fair Grounds the military led the way into the building followed by the civic procession and by the citizens generally. Notwithstanding the rain, which had poured down for hours and was still falling, quite a number of ladies occupied the seats reserved for them. Had it not been for the unfavorable weather the approving plaudits of Alexandria's fair daughters assembled en masse would have greeted the eloquent speaker, and tender flowers, strewed by childhood's willing hands, would have marked his path.

After prayer by Rev. Dr. Norton, General Hooker was introduced to the audience by General Corse. His would be a dull eye which did not at once perceive that the Mississippian challenged no ordinary attention. His person, to begin with, is remarkable for manly beauty and strength. The graceful curves are all there, which accompany perfect manhood, from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot. With a bearing military but courteous, with flashing dark blue eyes, and a smile that betrays the heart of a child, he looks the happiest mixture of an Anglo-Saxon and the Irish raucous. His "courtesy, soldier's soldier's eye, tongue, sword."

After speaking for a few moments it was perceived that General Hooker used only his right arm in gesticulating, and a close inspection revealed an amulet sleeve attached to his left breast. Beside such decoration the proud orator of the Garter is a senseless bauble. We will only reproduce, in our faint way, a few of the gems of General Hooker's address. To do him full justice the stenographer's art must be called into play.

General Hooker said that it afforded him a peculiar pleasure to address the good people of Virginia. When he did so he remembered that he was speaking to that heroic race whose soil was fought the most terrible struggles of the war—to that race who were the patriots of Lee and of Johnston. The circumstances which we were assembled to observe were of immemorial usage, even savage nations in the jaws of time, being accustomed to honor their dead with solemn rites. The gallant soldiers to whom we were lately opposed in arms would be the first to deprecate any neglect of this paramount obligation. It was peculiarly appropriate for an agricultural people, a people who like Athens, the fatherland, was each time stronger from contact with Old Mother Earth, to bear their first fruits of flowers to the graves of their dead, a grateful and grateful custom to their race. The Mississippi spoke well and warmly when he alluded to the tillers of the soil, from whose hard and horny hands sprang into being the wealth of the world. What would Commerce have to deal with should even a passing paralysis palsy Agriculture's pulsant arm? In words of civility which well became this tried soldier General Hooker then paid a glowing tribute to those who were in the field during the late terrible struggle. Had reconstruction been left to them, or had they controlling influence in the halls of legislation in place of the selfish politicians who had crowded them, the laws which disgraced our statute books and aimed at the degradation of a proud and patriotic people, would have never seen the light. This strong point was well put by the accomplished orator. The attempt to disgrace the sons of the South was likened to a similar effort of the English Government upon the Irish people in the person of Robert Emmet—the rebel immortal. His gibbeted body was metamorphosed into a statue of honor, purer than Parian marble! Well worthy the gallant Irishman was the telling tribute which the silver tongue of the Mississippi told. Thus did he exhibit to his attentive audience, whose appreciative applause frequently interrupted him, his "godlike gift of ready speech."

But there was no abuse of his most formidable weapon; no venom hidden beneath the folds of that marvellous organ. As convincing proof of this let us recall one more of his telling illustrations. "Virginians," said the orator, "your own soil is the immutable witness of the conflicting opinions which prevailed concerning our late disastrous conflict. Somewhere in this Commonwealth, ancient and renowned, somewhere in the Old Dominion there lived a father, one of whose sons were the gray, the other the blue. The usurping shaft of the grim archer pierced the heart of each, and both were borne to sad sepulchre beneath the sod of Virginia. The broken hearted father placed his boys side by side, and over their common grave he raised an arched monument, in the shape of a crescent, bearing a legend to be read and to be pondered over by the latest 'Virginian who treads her hallowed mould; God only knows which was in the right.' And to the latest syllable of recorded time may this well be a mystery to the delving student as to the public-spirited historian. Only when the last trumpet shall awaken the corruption which has put on immortality may this profound secret be revealed to the listening ear of the myriads who will stand before the bar of the Judge of all judges, the King of all kings." In this impartial manner, a manner to be imitated by all patriots, in this after-math of war, did the brave soldier deal with this subject which such as he would bury forever out of sight, but which designing politicians, those eminent citizens in war, those distinguished soldiers in peace, would keep alive for purposes as treacherous as they are corrupt. Our purpose will not admit of reproducing more of the eloquent effort of the gifted Southerner. But why try to gild the gold, or paint the lily? 'Twere but vain. After dwelling in terms that were touching and tender on the grief that filled all the sunny land of the South when, in language of fire, there was flashed to them the sad intelligence of the death of the illustrious Lee, the Mississippian took his seat amid deafening applause.

The line of march was then resumed to the cemetery, where the graves of the Confederate dead were profusely decorated with flowers. There were not wanting incidents which were pleasing. As the writer stood by the veteran Major Duffey the Superintendent of the Federal Cemetery, Captain Davis, stepped up and gracefully presented the gallant Major a large basket of flowers to be placed upon the Southern tomb. The act was kindly and it gratified us to give honor to whom honor is due. The scene was impressive, the sun breaking brightly through the rain, a bow of promise spanning the eastern skies. To the remark that it was such a pity that it rained, a lady present made the charming reply: "Oh! say not so, for is it not written, 'Blessed are the dead whom the rain rains on.'"

Then blessed, thrice blessed, to the Confederate dead. Let the custom of strewing flowers upon their graves not only be continued but improved upon. Upon the breasts of the dead who died for their country let there be placed not only the blushing roses of summer but the tender offerings of spring.

"Daffodils That come before the willow darts and tempt The winds of March with beauty; violets dim, But sweeter than the lids of Juno's eyes Or Cytherea's breath."
